DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The examiner is in receipt of applicant's response office action mailed 1/31/2006 which was received 5/2/2006. Acknowledgement is made to the addition of claims 30-34, leaving claims 23-28 and 30-34 as open to prosecution. Applicant's response and amendment have been carefully considered, but were not found to be persuasive, however, after further searching the following new grounds of rejection are provided which were necessitated by amendment.

Examiner's Note

Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers or figures in the references as applied to the claims below for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the responses, to fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3625

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 23-28 and 30-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Leymann et al. (US 6,009,405).

In regards to claims 23-28 and 30-34, Leymann teaches all the features of the instant claims. For instance, Lehmann teaches receiving an XML document and mapping the request to a transaction application (FIG 5), including a transactional identification element (col 16, lines 55-65.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 23-28 and 30-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ankireddipally et al (US 20020116205).

In regards to claims 23-28 and 30-34, Ankireddipally teaches al the features of the instant claims. For instance, Ankireddipally teaches a distributed transaction processing system includes a process automation application, referred to as a commerce exchange server, that manages transaction processing and message flow among application programs in a distributed computer network such as the Internet. The system includes a specially designed application interaction protocol that implements the request-reply, publish-notify and broadcast application interaction models. The system also uses a novel transaction definition data structure for specifying the component operations and processing logic that comprise the transaction. The transaction definition data structure allows for the use of conditional logic that specifies constraints on the sequence of operation execution. A transaction service architecture builds a transaction instance data structure to perform the transaction, produces the messages needed for performing the constituent operations that comprise the transaction, and manages the message flow to and from the service applications that perform the constituent operations. The process automation application together with its service applications constitute a domain. The system's architecture permits a process automation application in one domain to interact with a process automation application in a second domain. The application interaction protocol together with the transaction definition data structure permit the process automation application to distribute constituent operations for processing to service applications in different commerce exchange server domains (Abstract).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 23-28 and 30-34 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

Art Unit: 3625
